Statement of Significance This interesting adaptation of the bungalow style was built ca. 1910 by the Jewett family. The chalet style bungalow is one of few examples of this version of the popular bungalow style in Olympia and is in nearly original condition.

Description of Physical Appearance Overlooking Maple Park, the Jewett House is a rectangular, two-story wood frame structure, built in the Craftsman chalet style on a poured concrete foundation. Its front-gabled roof is covered with composition shingles, and has broad overhangs supported by decorative brackets, exposed rafters and wide gable-end fascia boards. Walls are clad with wood shingles, with those of the first story in alternating wide and narrow courses, and the slightly overhanging second story is supported by rows of decorative brackets along the side walls. Concrete steps with a wrought iron rail approach the central entry door on the front (north) facade. Above the door is a balcony with a rail of boards with decorative cut-outs, supported by carved beams and brackets, and reached via a second story door. Fenestration includes wide single-hung sash with multi-paned upper lights and bands of multi-paned casements. At the rear is a small enclosed porch, and behind the house is a detached garage.
