Description of Physical Appearance

Located on a corner lot obscured by tall trees and shrubs, the Hartung House is a rectangular, two-story wood frame structure, built in the Colonial Revival style on a concrete foundation. The saltbox-style gable roof is covered with composition shingles and has close eaves with returns. Walls are clad with wide clapboard on the first story, and vertical boards on the second story and in the gables. A brick chimney rises on the south wall. A concrete patio spans the front (west) facade, and centered on the facade is a two-story gabled projection; a row of rotund pendants hang from its overhanging second story. Below the overhang are the recessed main entry door and an adjacent multi-paned double-hung windows on the first story, above which are smaller double-hung windows topped by gabled wall dormers. In the rear, a garage nestles under the low saltbox roof.
